

Commissioners OK Miller Farm annexation

By Jesse Carter
Special to The News

The 171-acre Miller Farm annexation into Sunbury was approved June 17, in spite of concerns about the village's capacity to treat sewage from new developments.

The annexation brings the southwest corner of the busy U.S. 36-Ohio 3 intersection into the fast-growing village. The development firm Romanelli and Hughes is working on plans for the site.

Commissioner Merlin "Boots" Sheets asked about problems with the village sewage treatment plant at the May 6 public hearing on the annexation request. County Administrator Brian Stanfill wrote a follow-up letter seeking extensive documentation about the plant's capacity, history, and permit violations noted by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Those violations have been numerous more than 100 last year alone. A stack of last year's EPA violation notices to Sunbury were in the commissioners' official file on the Miller Farm annexation today.

"We ought to go on record here," Sheets said, bringing up the sewer situation before the annexation vote.

"Sunbury is making an effort to improve (the sewer system)," Sheets said. "I think there is a problem there ... This is a concern."

But Sheets joined fellow Commissioners Roy Jackson and Don Wuerz in voting for the annexation.

Sunbury Village Administrator Maynard Dils said the village gave a general response to Stanfill's request for documents. He said about $600,000 is being spent to fix leaky sewer lines which are allowing stormwater to enter the sewage system, consuming the treatment plant capacity in wet weather. Dils said a major leak in a line under Prairie Run, near the old Nestle plant, was fixed recently. Other repair work will be done by contractors in the coming months, he said.

The commissioners' file did not contain most of the documentation Stanfill asked for in his May 7 letter to Dils. He had requested information including the treatment plant's design capacity, average flows, reserve capacity for new home sites already planned, system upgrade plans, and a financial report. None of that was in the file.

But the EPA letters were there, all signed by Michael E. Sapp of the Central District surface water compliance and enforcement section. A Jan. 3 letter from Sapp to Dils reminded him that "bypass events" — when sewage from the plant overflows — "were to have been eliminated by March 25, 1991." That letter stated the plant was "in noncompliance," and there had been 23 bypasses since January 1993 including 11 during 1995.

The letters also indicated the treatment plant failed to meet its EPA permit minimum for dissolved oxygen in effluent most of the time between June and October of 1995. The plant violated the dissolved-oxygen limit 18 days in June, all 31 days in July, 28 days in August, 26 days in September, and 16 days in October.

The letters also noted permit violations for ammonia, fecal coliform bacteria, chlorine, and suspended solids between May and January. The EPA cited a 7-day average for fecal coliform bacteria double the permit limit in May 1995.

Sheets indicated he had examined the EPA letters and said they supported his

After class, local gardeners blossom in their yards

the farm in December.

Two years ago Martha Simon enrolled in master gardening classes offered through the Ohio State University extension office. Today she has her own garden design business.

"I've always been interested in gardening," Simon said. "I find it so enjoyable. I like other people to get involved in it."

The master gardener sessions for Delaware and Union County that Simon participated in will be held July 2-August 17. Sessions are held on Tuesday and Thursday's from 6 p.m.-9:30 p.m. Some weeks won't have two sessions.

The cost is $65, which pays for the manual and materials needed for the classes.

Mary Williamson felt the money was well spent.

Williamson participated in the program last year to learn more about plants, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. Now she owns a 44-acre farm which houses a vegetable and herb garden, greenhouse and a soon-to-be fruit garden.

"Participation in the master gardening program is what sparked us to get started," Williamson said of beginning a gardening business. Williamson, along with her husband, daughter, and son-in-law purchased

A diversified program, there were "a lot of good speakers in different areas that sparked my interest," she said.

Williamson suggests the program for those who are interested in gardening or want to start their own agricultural business.

"I thought it was an excellent program. If you enjoy gardening at all, you'll enjoy it more because you'll have a better understanding," she said.

Experienced gardeners can also learn from the program.

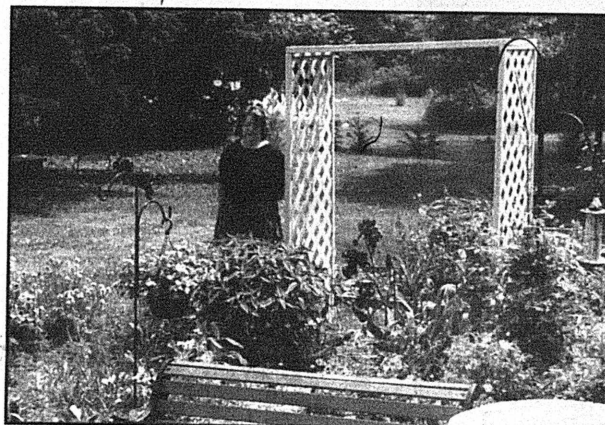

Martin Foster, a gardener all his life, participated in the program last year in hopes he could learn something new.

What he enjoyed the most was meeting fellow gardeners because "it is through those connections you'll learn the most."

An organic gardener, Foster has 35 garden and vegetable beds scattered in his yard, each averaging 400 square feet. Foster suggested the program should include information on organic gardening in the future.

After attending all the classes and passing an exam at the end of the period, participants are required to vol-

Galena to renew tax levy

Galena Council voted to ask voters to renew a 2-mill operating levy in the Nov. 5 general election.

The levy generates about $4,500 annually for the village, Clerk Marian Paisley said.

Even though the ballot will read a renewal of 2 mills the tax levy will be collected at a lower rate, Delaware County Auditor Jon Peterson said. The levy irregularly is being collected at a 1.7-mill rate. But with upcoming property value reappraisals, that rate is likely to drop further, he said.

Council members unanimously voted in favor of a resolution that would place the issue on the ballot, and to make the resolution an emergency, thus bypassing the required second and third readings of resolution. The vote came during the June 17 council meeting.

Clerk Marian Paisley said the emergency measure was needed to assure that the paperwork is completed before the Delaware County Board of Elections deadline for the general election.

In other action, council:

- Held a second reading on ordinances to vacate an alley off of Walnut Street and to amend the income tax rules. Third readings on both issues will be at the council's July 15 meeting.

- Approved application for federal funds for Ruffner Park. The federal monies would be matched with local funds, Harpst said.

- Agreed to post meeting notices and other government information at the Galena post office instead of the county EMS station on Harrison Street. Village officials' post notices in five locations in the village instead of advertising in a newspaper.

- Responded to audience questions concerning the proposed Walnut Creek development on the north edge of the village. Harpst said it would take several months for the proposal to work its way through the village zoning commission and council. Two residents — former mayor Will York and Dick Laudick said they were concerned with the proposed density of the development and the distances between houses.

Ed Hoke's garden thrives

It took Sunbury resident Ed Hoke several years to appreciate gardens.

"I didn't pay much attention to flowers until I retired," Hoke said. But for the past 13 years, his appreciation and skills have grown along with the flowers and shrubs in his Hill Street yard.

He has nurtured a yard full of roses and perennials, and each year adds a few annuals.

He said his father was a gardener — something he didn't understand when he was younger. Now it's Hoke who is passing on his gardening skills to his children.

"I tell them to stop and smell the roses," Hoke said. "Stop and look what God has done for us."

His house is located beside Big Walnut Middle School.

Souders' Principal Zarich to leave for Olentangy

Souders Elementary Principal Melissa Zarich will leave that post to become assistant principal at Alum Creek Elementary School in the neighboring Olentangy School District.

That is Olentangy's newest school building on South Old State Road. It is slated to open in August with about 500 pupils in grades kindergarten through fifth.

Zarich, who has been a Big Walnut teacher and administrator since 1977, said it with mixed emotions that she is leaving.

"It's thrilling to open a new building, but my heart is here," she said.

She will be the assistant to Principal Colleen Stump. Stump served this past year as assistant principal at Wyandot Run, another Olentangy Elementary School just north of Powell.

Zarich taught in Youngstown and Columbus public schools before coming to Big Walnut. She was a teacher in the district until 1981, when she was tapped for the Souders position.

Zarich's departure isn't the only change for the school. Secretary Candy Neepel also will leave to become secretary to BW Superintendent Melissa Conrath.

Conrath said she learned of Zarich's decision to leave a few days ago, and that the school board members also have been told. Conrath said process of selecting a new principal has not been decided.

Friends remember local educator Norm Nelson

Friends, former students and co-workers remembered Norm Nelson as a lifelong educator, not only in the classroom, but in all walks of life. Nelson, 67, died June 14 at his Sunbury home. He was a teacher for 31 years at Big Walnut, where he also served as coach and athletic director.

He also served for more than 21 years as a part-time officer with the Sunbury Police Department. "Norm was one of the three greatest influences in my life," said Sunbury Police Chief Gary Hall, who first knew Nelson as a teacher and coach. "I probably never would have gotten through school if it hadn't been for him."

"He always took an interest in people, especially in young people," Hall said. "I was not very good (at basketball) but he gave me every chance in the world to play."

Big Walnut Principal Charles Workman remembered Nelson this way.

"He was a tremendous person and a great coach but I remember him most as an outstanding and dedicated teacher. When the bell rang, he taught with great gusto and enthusiasm. I appreciated that as a principal and I'm sure the students respected that as well."

Big Walnut High School teacher Roger Roberts said Nelson influenced him as a teacher.

"It's the passing of an era. He influenced a lot of teachers and they've copied him a lot over the years. I still have the letters he gave me when he retired," Roberts said.

Nelson was perhaps BW's greatest sports fan, Roberts said. "He loved going to all athletic events at the school and never turned down an invitation to attend. He always wanted to win, regardless as a spectator or coach. He hated to lose."

During his years at Big Walnut, Nelson coached football, baseball, golf, but he was probably best known as basketball coach. Over the years, he compiled a record of 203 wins and 116 losses on the basketball court and coached numerous league championship teams.

Retired veteran Buckeye Valley basketball coach Dick Meyer, remembered his rival as gentleman: "I always respected Norm, not only as a coach but he was one of the really fine people in the sports field. He was a gentleman."

Big Walnut graduate Jim Boyd, who also coached cross country and track at the school, remembered his mentor.

"Of a handful of people, he was one that's been very influential with the kids in our community. He was well respected and appreciated. He influenced everybody that passed his way in a positive way."

In the years since his 1983 retirement from Big Walnut, Nelson tackled his police job with a similar level of enthusiasm. But he couldn't help continuing his role as an educator.

"It didn't matter what you were talking about, you always got the feeling that Norm was educating you on the subject," said Sunbury Police Lt. Don Corbin. "He spent a lot of time with the younger officers ... He always had time for every-

Developer Vince Romanelli attended the meeting. Afterward, he said a plan for single-family homes and condominiums might be submitted to the village within the next couple months, but no construction is planned on the site this year.

Sessions are taught by extension professionals and horticulture specialists and cover such topics such as lawn maintenance, propagation, bee keeping and landscaping, said Rob Leeds, Ohio State University extension agent in agriculture and natural resources.

Like Williamson, Simon found the program to be very helpful. "It makes more people aware of gardens and less people intimidated by them," she said.

Simon liked the idea of volunteering because it gave her a chance to give back to the community by working on the horticulture hot line.

Simon began her garden design business, Goodness Grows Garden Design, last spring after she became a master gardener. She designs cutting, rose, heirloom and other garden types the homeowner requests.

Overall, the program has gone better than expected, Leeds said. "I'm really excited about the interest in landscaping," he said.

The third year held, the classes have become quite popular. With only 30 spots available, 110 applications have been sent out. The spots will be filled equally by Delaware and Union County residents.

"It's taken three of us (officers) to try to complete his duties, and we're not doing it very well," Corbin said. "He'd probably laugh at that."

Construction impedes northbound travel

Traveling north from Sunbury is a real challenge these days.

Construction on U.S. 36/Ohio 3 between Sunbury and Centerburg just east of the Knox County line will continue through the end of the month, according to Ohio Department of Transportation officials.

And unless you like sitting in traffic, avoid Interstate 71 in Morrow County. ODOT is trying to speed up repair work on two I-71 overpasses between the Ohio 61 and Ohio 95 exits, but traffic is still backing up for miles in both directions. The bridge repairs are squeezing traffic into one lane in both directions.

ODOT is paying the contractor to speed up the construction process," said Don Violett, ODOT District Six area engineer. "If we hadn't done that, it would have taken about three more weeks to complete."

June 30 is now the target completion date. Because of the traffic jams, ODOT has posted a detour route on Ohio 95 and Ohio 61, going through Mount Gilead. Some motorists are detouring to the east on Ohio 61, Ohio 229, Ohio 314, and Ohio 95, but that route through Marietta and Chesterville has intersection turns difficult for tractor-trailers.

"People should avoid traveling through the area during peak hours, especially Friday and Sunday evenings," said ODOT District Six Public Information Officer Elana Stota. "Motorists will experience major traffic backups during those time periods. The problem is extreme volumes of traffic and nowhere to put the vehicles."

Also, repair projects on two Ohio 229 bridges are continuing, and both are to be completed by July 15. Those projects have Ohio 229 closed just west of Marietta in Morrow County, and just east of Sparta in Knox County.

Exploring cyberspace

County government to go 'on line'

Some day, Delaware Countians should be able to renew dog licenses or apply for vendor's permits without leaving the seat in front of their home computers.

The Delaware County government is plugging into cyberspace.

This week, the county commissioners subscribed for local access to the Internet via The Gazette's MidOhio Net service. Soon, computer users will be able to access a Delaware County government home page, now under development.

County Auditor Jon Peterson, one of the officials working on the project, said the home page initially will feature information. He said it might help users learn how tax rates are set or how properties are evaluated - two of his office's functions. The county financial reports might be placed on the system as well, Peterson said.

County Commissioners President Roy Jackson said his office might make information on building and zoning permits available through the Internet. The commissioners got an Internet demonstration at their weekly meeting this week.

Beyond that, he said, some interactive services are envisioned such as the electronic dog-tag and vendor's license ordering system. "The more we use it, the more we'll be available of what possibilities exist," he said.

Peterson said home page sites will be made available to all branches of the county government; he figures some will use it, and some won't. He said the initial Delaware County home page offerings should be on the "net" within a month.

Special precautions needed with teen driversBy Joyce Fittro
OSU Extension Agent

As a group, teen-age drivers have high crash rates per mile driven. What isn't so widely known is that the problem is worst among 16-year-olds, the age when most beginners get licenses. If a teen in your household is licensed, or about to be, this information is for you.

Crashes involving 16-year-old drivers aren't like those involving older drivers. They even differ from crashes involving drivers only a year or two older. For one thing, 16-year-olds get in trouble trying to handle unusual driving situations, even small emergencies. More often than when older people drive, such situations turn into disasters. The essential problem is that the young people bring both inexperience at the wheel and the immaturity of their 16 years to the complex task of driving.

According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, in 1993, a total of 1,269 people died in crashes involving 16-year-old drivers. The deaths broke down like this:

- 454 drivers 16 years old died.
- 447 passengers died, 376 teens, 80 people of other ages.
- 281 people died in other vehicles - that is, they were struck by the vehicles driven by the 16-year-olds.
- 66 deaths were pedestrians.
- 21 were other/unknown.

Beginning teen-age drivers are inexperienced behind the wheel and immature - both factors that contribute to the high risk of a motor vehicle crash. Some states have laws to address the problem of teen-age drivers' high crash risk, but laws aren't the whole answer. Parents can take important steps to reduce the possibility their children will be in crashes. For example, parents should choose safe cars for their teen-agers to drive, keeping in mind that large cars are safer than small ones. Air bags and antilock brakes make cars safer, too. When the time comes for your son or daughter to buy a first car, try to influence the decision. Whereas teen-agers might be concerned with styling and options, point out how safety features should also be given serious consideration before a buying decision is made.

Many states have laws permitting early licensure, sometimes with only a short learning period required. Parents should lengthen the learning stage to make sure their sons and daughters get plenty of supervised, on-the-road driving experience, preferably with a parent in the car. This way, the children are older and they've got more experience when they get their unrestricted license.

Parent should establish "house rules" regarding driving hours. The highest risk for serious or fatal accidents is at night, with other teens in the car. This is when a teen driver is most likely to succumb to peer pressure. Curfew plays a major role in preventing teen-age deaths in motor vehicles.

Ease your child into more challenging driving situations such as expressways and inner-city traffic.

When your children begin to drive, allow them to use the car only for specific destination trips, such as the library or to the store. Discourage unnecessary driving.

To instill a sense of responsibility, require your teen to shoulder a portion of the expenses for gasoline, maintenance and insurance. This will create awareness that there is more involved with having a car than driving. Consider making the teen earn driving privileges through chores or academic performance.

Remembering that safety belt use is low among teen-agers - even in states with safety belt laws, parents should require their children to buckle up every trip. By decreasing that no one may drive or ride in your family vehicle without buckling up, you'll also discourage the tendency for too many teen-agers to pile into the car - an especially dangerous practice. Parents should insist on no-drinking-and-driving rules. If children do drink, despite the rules, parents should make sure there is a way for them to get home without driving.

Set a good example for teens yourself, adhering to traffic laws and safe driving practices. Remember: Your child is watching and learning from you and may tend to mirror your driving habits - good or bad. Parents should prohibit motorcycle riding altogether, because the death rate on motorcycles is far higher than that in cars.

Committee heats up for summer campaign

It's six weeks until the special Aug. 6 election for the Big Walnut schools operating levy. But the levy campaign committee is already in high gear planning for fund-raisers and community events to raise awareness of the need for the levy.

About 40 people came to the June 12 organizational meeting of the ABC Committee, said Carol McCarrick, who is the publicity coordinator for the campaign.

But even more volunteers are welcome to help, she said.

Big Walnut School Board voted last month to place a 3.3-mill operating levy on the ballot. The levy will generate about $750,000 annually for the district. It will replace a 2.2-mill levy set to expire Dec. 31, 1996.

The ABC Committee has announced its July 13 kickoff event on the Sunbury Square, featuring Arnett Howard's Creole Funk Band. The event will run from 6 to 10 p.m., and will include carnival games, a raffle, concessions, a dunking machine featuring local celebrities, and a "kiss the pig" contest. Also the levy campaign group will provide absentee voter applications and T-shirts for sale.

Volunteers are needed to help with the events, and to provide monetary donations, food items or raffle prizes.

The ABC Committee also will participate in several Fourth of July community events. The group will sponsor a float for the parade, make the gates at the flea market, and sell pop and T-shirts at the fireworks.

On July 22, Delaware County Auditor Jon Peterson will be at a question-and-answer session at the Big Walnut High School. He will address what impact the levy will have on property owners. People are invited to bring their most recent property tax bill for an explanation of what portion goes to the schools.

The committee also will be holding a door-to-door campaign in the weeks just prior to the election.

Speakers are available to any group who wishes to be informed about the levy. To arrange for a speaker, for more information on the levy, or to telephone for the committee, call the volunteer hot line at 965-5028.

Granville Street extension gets final village nod

Construction will soon begin on the Granville Street extension - now that the village has given its final plan approval.

Village engineer Russ Labut said he signed off June 12 on all of Romanelli and Hughes' drawings for the construction, which would eventually extend the present Granville Street about 520 feet west and then north to Burrer Drive.

The section of the street off Burrer Drive will begin this month. This would allow the developer to sell properties on both sides of the extension. Labut said the area was zoned industrial.

Plans call for the extension's construction to be completed in about 30 days.

House set for demolition holds architectural significance

Dear Editor,
I read in The Sunbury News, May 23, 1996, of the village's intent to demolish the house located at 76 S. Columbus St. for use as a parking lot.

The house at 76 S. Columbus St. is an unusual building in that it was constructed by using ceramic tiles. It retains its historic architectural integrity and appears to be in good physical condition.

Letters to the Editor

The Ohio Historic Preservation office urges the village of Sunbury to consider whether the addition of a few new parking spaces is worth the destruction of a locally significant historic building. Has the village conducted a parking study to determine the needs of the community? Are there other sites which could be developed for parking that would not result in the demolition of historic buildings? Has the village considered using the house for additional office space or leasing it out for rental income?

Building by building, site by site, a community's heritage can be gradually lost through the private and public land use decision. Like any limited resource, historic properties need careful planning and management to ensure their survival for current and future generations. The preservation of our heritage is not a luxury. It actually helps combat the very problems that plague communities by stabilizing neighborhoods, stimulating private investment, attracting tourists, and strengthening community pride.

BW above average in 4th, 6th-grade proficiency tests

By Susan Wright

"We're pleased with the results but we're not satisfied," said Big Walnut Schools curriculum supervisor Fred Fulton, explaining school officials' opinion of the latest elementary proficiency test results.

For the second year, Big Walnut fourth-graders performed better than the state average with only a few exceptions.

The first ever sixth-grade proficiency test also showed Big Walnut's students above average.

School officials are pleased, Fulton said, because the fourth-grade showed improvement over last year's results, especially at Harrison Street. Last year, school officials were left scratching their heads trying to decide why that school's results were far below the district's other two elementary schools.

Last year, only 49 percent of Harrison Street fourth-graders passed the mathematics portion of the test. This year, 89 percent received passing scores. One hundred percent of Harrison Street fourth-graders passed the citizenship portion of the test.

Also, Fulton said fourth-graders did well on the science part of the test — new this year.

Big Walnut students' success rates fell below the state average in two instances — the percent of Big Walnut Elementary students passing all five parts of the exam and the percent of BWE students passing the writing exam.

Taken collectively, 60 percent of Big Walnut fourth-graders passed all five parts of the test, compared with 50 percent statewide.

The success rate for sixth-graders was above the state average in all categories.

Statewide, 29 percent of sixth-graders passed all five parts of their test. Thirty-four percent of Big Walnut sixth-graders passed all five parts.

Fulton said Big Walnut has "a lot of work to do" to boost sixth-grade success rates. But he added that the Ohio Department of Education also has some work to do with the test format which "frustrated teachers."

"I hope the state department considers not making the testing process itself an obstacle for kids to overcome," Fulton said.

The state Board of Education adopted "advanced" standards that indicate competency on more complex knowledge and skills. Statewide, less than 1 percent of sixth-graders met the high measure of achievement in all five tests. At Big Walnut, only one student met that standard.

The fourth and sixth-grade tests were given in March. The tests do not carry with them the same degree of importance as with the ninth-grade proficiency test, where failure means a student is denied a high school diploma. But the two elementary tests are designed to alert educators to students who need intervention.

For the tests are "early-warning" exams designed to help students prepare for the ninth-grade proficiency test, said state education Superintendent John M. Goff. "I am extremely concerned that students are posting such poor results early on. We obviously have a lot of work ahead of us to help students achieve results appropriate for their grade level," Goff said.

Condit Livestock

On June 10, the Condit Livestock Club meeting began with three demonstrations. Brad Debolt presented information about soybeans, Molly Murphy spoke about showing rabbits and Amber Hogg displayed materials and techniques for creating corsages.

The club voted on a July 8 deadline for dues and accepted Clover Buds' offer to help with the Delaware Fair Booth. Many members, advisors and parents signed up to work at the Fourth of July Fun Frolics and to help build the club float. Several members also volunteered to plant geraniums around the Condit Presbyterian Church.

The next meeting will be on June 24, at the Debolt's home where members with animal projects will learn and teach others how to prepare their animals for judging.

Pegasus

The Pegasus 4-H Club met on June 19, at the Delaware County Fairgrounds for their first ride in preparation of the first State Fair qualifying show on June 22. On June 26, the Club will meet to practice for the second State Fair qualifying show which will be held June 29.

Scott Henney and Sarah Henney presented demonstrations on cattle grooming and wound treatment on June 11.

Dr. Kelly Johnston discussed horse worming and disease inoculations at the June 4 meeting. Thanks to Wyndol Popcorn, Dan Glass and Ellen Pratt, of Marion, for donating and delivering snacks used at the concession stand at the June 8 horse show. The Club will sell $5 coupon books as a fund-raiser.

Snip & Stitch

At the recent Big Walnut Snip & Stitch 4-H Club meeting, Ashley Guthrie lead the Pledge of Allegiance with Traci Travel leading the 4-H Pledge. The club reviewed the summer schedule.

Traci Travel gave a demonstration on the food pyramid. Ashley Guthrie demonstrated the preparation of fruits and vegetables for a veggie tray which the members later enjoyed. Nathan and Stephen Baker provided refreshments. Members then gathered in small groups to review their projects.

Weekend renewal found in Lewisburg, W.Va.

By Leslie Parker Duren

Spring's passage into summer not only means an upward climb in the mercury, but also an increased desire to escape the intense temperatures. Summer activities keep many of us close to home, but an overdue, long weekend can usually be worked into the family schedule.

After just returning from a trip to Puerto Rico a couple of weeks ago, going on another trip for my birthday, as we always do, seemed a low priority. Not wanting to break a long standing tradition, I chose to escape for just a weekend to a place only a few hours away, which is very accessible and worth visiting even if it's your only vacation all summer.

Lewisburg, West Virginia. While Lewisburg, the county seat of Greenbrier County, West Virginia may not be familiar to you, its neighbor down the road seven miles probably is. While Sulphur Springs, home of the famous Greenbrier Resort is well worth its own article. All of the elements that make a weekend getaway memorable can be found without ever leaving Lewisburg's city limits.

Surrounded by mountains and springs that nearly outnumber the people, Greenbrier County has always been a mecca for those in search of physical and spiritual renewal. Today, a majority of the springs are closed and only the occasional bathroom or marker validate their existence. Reading about the history of the springs, playing a game from the Civil War era or rocking on the porch of a grand southern mansion while sipping a mint julep are only a few of the niceties awaiting you, if you stay where we always do, The General Lewis Inn.

Checking into the General Lewis Inn, in the heart of Lewisburg, means having the chance to sample the finest inn cuisine, take an evening stroll in the beautiful formal gardens, and sleep in a comfortable antique bed, so high, you nearly need a step stool.

The Inn makes a very good base to center your entire getaway around, because all the brochures, books and material ever written about Lewisburg and Greenbrier County are at your disposal, as well as a friendly staff to help you sort through it all. Once you find the strength to pull yourself away from the Inn, there's much to discover in this town of 7,000 people.

Go back to the Inn if you don't have a "Visitors Guide to Historic Lewisburg" and "Walking Tour of Historic Lewisburg" in your hand.

The Scenic Route

The maps are very easy to follow and all of the sites are numbered clearly. Attractions not to be missed outside the Lewisburg area are listed and there's no need to drive. Like so many towns, this town is an architectural gem, with many specialty and antique shops peppered throughout downtown. Our preference for dining is the General Lewis Inn, but there are other nice eateries in town worth trying like Julian's Restaurant and Coffee Bar. Unlike most states where the state fair is at the capital, the West Virginia state fair is held in Lewisburg. This year's fair runs August 9-17. Both booklets may be obtained at the Inn or by contacting the Lewisburg Visitors Center, 105 Church St., Lewisburg, W. Virginia, 24901. The phone is number 304-645-1000.

Whether it's your first or fifteenth visit to Lewisburg, you will want to get there in the least time possible. Leave Sunbury on U.S. 36W to Delaware, where you'll get on U.S. 23S and follow that to Chillicothe.

Take U.S. 35E to Nitro W.V., where you'll pick up Interstate 64E. At Charleston, I-64E and I-77S become the same road. Stay on I-64E and enjoy the beautiful drive through the Greenbrier valley all the way to Lewisburg. Exit at U.S. 219S and follow it a mile into the center of town. Turn left onto U.S. 60E. The General Lewis Inn is two and one half blocks on the right.

Travel Tips: Rates for a first class room at the General Lewis Inn are $60 per night with one double bed, up to $88 per night for the 1834 master suite or the two room suite suitable for up to four people.

Contact the General Lewis Inn at 304-645-2600 for more information. To make a reservation call 1-800-628-4454. The Inn's address is 301 E. Washington St., Lewisburg, WV 24901.

Anyone with comments, questions or suggestions for Leslie, is asked to send those to her at The Scenic Route, c/o The Sunbury News, P.O. Box 59, Sunbury, Ohio 43074-0059.

SOUND ADVICE
Brought to you by: John Wright

If you have a friend or family member who wears a hearing aid, remember that it does not make their hearing perfect. When they come to visit turn the TV and radio off. Background noises can make it very hard to carry on a conversation. It will also help if you turn several lights on. Most hearing aid users ignore sound to pick up what they do not hear. The most important thing is to speak slowly and clearly, but do not shout. With just a few simple considerations like these, most hearing aid users will do just fine.

"FLOSSING"

Brushing your teeth does most of the work in keeping your teeth clean, but it can't reach plaque and food particles between teeth and under the gumline. Daily flossing will keep plaque from building up in these hard to reach areas.

There are two types of floss, "waxed" and "unwaxed." Use whichever you prefer. To make sure you floss all of your teeth, start behind the upper and lower molars at one side of your mouth and work toward the other side.

Flavored floss is now available, so you can choose from mint or bubble gum as well as others.

Brush and floss daily and see your dentist regularly.

Alumni recognized

Mary Conway Lawson, Harlem class of 1928, and Harry Sherman, were recognized as the oldest graduate, and the graduate who had traveled the farthest to attend the alumni banquet.

Local man honored

Sunbury resident Frederick R. McKinney was awarded the 1996 Stetson Award, which is given annually to a Capital University faculty or staff member for exceptional dedication to the university.

McKinney has been the university's superintendent of buildings and grounds since 1982. During his 14 years at Capital, McKinney has been responsible for overseeing the maintenance and repair of all university buildings.

146 gather for Harlem reunion

It's been 44 years since the last Harlem School class graduated. But that doesn't mean the alumni have forgotten the school that once stood on Ohio 605 in Center Village.

One hundred and forty-six people — alumni and guests — gathered for the Harlem School's annual Alumni Banquet June 15 at Souders Elementary School.

The group honored members of the class of 1946. In attendance were Pat Dell Bowman, Ellen Salisbury Noie, Harriett Mitchell Garec, Betty Barcus Garec, Harry Sherman, Faye Gordon Romay, Freda Hickman Weldon and A.C. Mann.

Alumni President John Barnhardt told the audience that another 1946 class member, Carlton Ryder, had been looking forward to the reunion with his classmates. Ryder, of Sunbury, died last fall. Two other classmates are deceased: Rose Ann Eberman and Wilbert Garbarant. There were 12 in the class.

Edgar Bagley, who was a teacher and coach for the class, and served at the Harlem School for 10 years, was an honored guest at the event. (Please see related story on Page 9.) Sherman, of Silver Creek, Wash., was honored as the alumnus who traveled the farthest.

Mary Conway Lawson, class of 1928, was honored as the oldest alum present for the event.

Next year's banquet will be June 21.

Good wishes to the new Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnson who were married at Cross Lutheran Church, Burlington, Wisconsin on June 15. Folks with Central Ohio connections included Mr. and Mrs. Gary Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schnipke, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bash, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Collier, Mrs. Dean Fisher, Christie Johnson, Dan Hale, Mike Mahan and Carl Swain.

New Hope United Methodist Church's Bible School starts on June 23, and continues through Thursday when there will be a camp that evening.

The planners are in need of one and three pound coffee cans with lids and two tire jugs. Call Norma Jean Hill if you can help with those things.

Sorry, I don't have a report on the Harlem Alumni Banquet or all the other news, the wedding took a lot of time and energy. Now that we are home, the wedding will take just as much time and energy!

Area artist to exhibit

Galena resident Carolyn J. Heffelfinger will be exhibiting her watercolor paintings in the first annual "Celebrate Summer Art Fair" on June 22, from 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on the campus of Ohio State University at Marion. A panel of jurors selected the 40 best entries to participate in the fair after invitations to compete were sent to artists from all over Ohio.

The fair is sponsored by the Mid-Ohio Fine Art Society, Inc.

Be alert to Lyme Disease threat, symptoms

You've heard of Lyme Disease, but did you know it is expected to make a comeback this year? It is said it might make a very strong appearance in the northeastern mid-Atlantic and midwestern states, as well as in Oregon and northern California.

You probably know that Lyme Disease is transmitted by a deer tick. When an infected tick bites an animal or a person, it enters the bloodstream and can cause this disease.

Scientists say they expect more deer ticks than normal because oak trees are producing a larger number of acorns. These acorns provide a large food supply for the white-footed mouse, causing the mouse population to increase. Deer tick larvae can thrive on this mouse.

Deer have been forced onto lawns and school areas. Then deer ticks can wind up on shrubbery and can attach themselves to people.

One sound way to avoid contracting the Lyme Disease is to limit your exposure to the deer tick by wearing

Silver Moments
By Annabelle Banning

protective clothing such as knee-high socks, long pants and long-sleeved shirts plus sneakers or high-top shoes.

Usually it takes 24 hours for an infected tick to transmit the Lyme Disease, but can occur in as few as six hours. If you experience a hot, itchy rash that looks like a bull's eye, check your entire body. You might also experience chills, fever or muscle and joint pain similar to arthritis, dizziness, headache and weakness.

What should you do? Call the doctor.

And also, be sure to examine your pets before they enter the house and talk to the veterinarian for advice on how to protect your pet.

A Lyme Disease vaccine for people might be available soon.

DID YOU KNOW

Cottage cheese contains about 450 mgs. of sodium per half cup? That's 100 percent of the estimated daily requirement. I know low salt that is available can taste rather bland. Cut sodium in half by adding 1/4 teaspoon of salt to 16 ounces of the low salt variety. Or, mix equal amounts of regular and low salt cottage cheese.

That infants begin to learn their names when they reach the age of 4 1/2 months. They'll look longer at a voice speaking their name than one saying a different name.

That a better bargain is paper towels and tissues. Both items will be coming down in prices, due to falling pulp costs. Estimates are that toilet and facial tissue will decrease in price by 8.5 percent and 5 percent for paper towels.

Because of increasing grain prices, food will be somewhat higher in supermarkets. The average could be about 4 percent higher. Have you already noticed these higher prices?

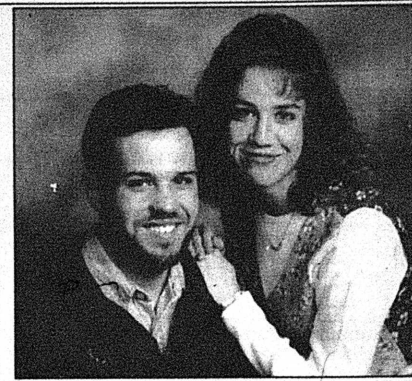

Another item I wish to share: Always make plans, even if things seem to change in your life constantly. Making plans will help to give you a stronger sense of control.

Planning also provides you with some fallback options in case things would change. It would involve evaluating different alternatives.

Matthew Rehm and Linda Webb

May 1997 ceremony planned

Sonni Rounds, of Fremont, Calif., and her husband, Stevan, announce the engagement of her daughter, Linda Jean Webb, to Matthew Paul Rehm. He is the son of Bill and Beckie Rehm of Galena. The bride-to-be graduated from Enginal High School, Alameda, Calif., in 1992, and from Northland College in Ashland, Wis., in May 1996, with a bachelor of science degree in biology. Mr. Rehm is a 1992 graduate of Big Walnut High School. He received a bachelor of science degree in biology from Northland College of Bill and Beckie Rehm of Galena. The couple plan to marry in the spring of 1997 in Ashland, Wis.

Michelle Whitehead and Joe McCague

BW grads to marry

St. John the Baptist Italian Church in Columbus will be the site of the Sept. 7, 1996, wedding ceremony of Big Walnut High School graduates Michelle Whitehead and Joe McCague, both of Columbus. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Andrea DiOrio of Galena and Paul Whitehead of Sunbury. She is a 1988 BWHS grad and a 1992 alumna of Capital University, where she majored in international studies and history. She is employed at the A.W. Fenton Co. The future bridegroom, also a 1988 BW grad, is employed at Buckeye Bleacher Repair. He is the son of Jack and Juanita McCague of Sunbury.

Use a different kind of green in your salad

I could hardly wait to get to my computer this week to share the following recipe for fresh green bean salad. It was given to me by a friend, who likes to feed her family healthy foods but doesn't like to spend a lot of time in the kitchen. I know many of you are planting your gardens, so include an extra row of green beans to have on hand — you'll want to make this delicious salad often!

FRESH GREEN BEAN SALAD
1 to 1 1/2 pounds of fresh green beans, trimmed and washed
1 envelope Good Season Italian dressing
Balsamic (enough to replace cider vinegar in recipe)
Salt, pepper and garlic powder to taste

1 thinly sliced red or yellow bell pepper
Cook in boiling water or steam green beans just until crisp and tender, about 5 minutes. Cool. Mix dressing according to package direction, substituting balsamic vinegar for cider vinegar. Toss beans with dressing and adjust seasonings. Refrigerate. A few hours before serving, add sliced pepper. Can be made a day in advance. Serves 6-8.

TIPS FROM RITA'S KITCHEN:
Balsamic vinegar is an aromatic vinegar, aged in wooden casks like fine old wine. The best (and most expensive) comes from Modena, Italy. It is dark, somewhat sweet, yet very pungent. Use it sparingly. I like to caramelize onions with it instead of using butter or oil, for a fat-free side dish.

'Miss Independence' to be selected June 21

By Nick Sabo

The title of Miss Independence will be sought by eight candidates in Sunbury's annual Miss Independence Pageant on June 21, in the Big Walnut High School auditorium at 7 p.m. Tonya Bailey, Jessica Crowl, Lauren Donnel, Karen Downey, Abbra Montgomery, Erica Roach, Christina Simpson, and Amber Wood will put their skills to the test in four categories, before a panel of three judges. The pageant contestants will receive 25 percent of their final score from an essay composed before the pageant. Judging on the night of the pageant will cover performance in creative arts, gown presentation, and an unrehearsed, randomly selected interview question.

Creative arts is anything from a poetry reading to dancing, explained Rhonda Pyles, pageant coordinator.

"Eight interview questions will be attached to eight carnations," Candi McDaniel, who will emcee the pageant, said. "That way it will be fair and random. The questions are of concern to girls of their age."

McDaniel has judged several pageants, including this year's "Miss Co-ed Pageant" in Columbus which attracted over 480 hopefuls.

"We've added some new awards to the pageant," Pyles said. "Miss Congeniality will get a $50 savings bond, as will the winning essay and creative arts." The pageant is free and open to the public.

Granville art show set for June 28, 29

The public is invited to Street Scenes, a sidewalk sale and creative art show on June 28 and 29 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Opera House Park in Granville. The event is free of charge.

New minister joins Grace Baptist

Rev. Ted Pursell began his ministry as pastor at Grace Baptist Church on June 2. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in Church Ministries from Liberty University. In addition to assisting with ministries at Bethel Baptist Church in Pataaskala, he served as a youth director for four years. His wife, Mary, has worked as a home health care aid.

"Our mission is two-fold: to love God with all that we are and to love our neighbors as ourselves. Our goal is to please God by being faithful to his word and to be known in the community as 'caring for others because Christ cares for us.' Starting anew, we don't have the 'fluff' but we believe we have the 'stuff' to help meet spiritual needs in the community. Come join our crusade for Christ and discover what he has in store for us," invites Pursell.

Local teens attend Boys, Girls State

Three Big Walnut students recently returned from a week at Buckeye Boys State, held at Bowling Green State University.

Scott Elliott, Justin Wood and Zach Hite were the local representatives sponsored by the American Legion Benson Hough Post #457 in Sunbury.

The week-long seminars are designed to teach students about the operations of city, county and state government. Students elect delegates, run for office, attend conventions, caucuses, legislative sessions and schools of instruction.

Scott Elliott held the post of prosecuting attorney. He is the son of Cecil and Carol Elliott of Centerburg Road.

Zach Hite was elected associate Supreme Court justice. He is the son of David and Carol Hite, Sunbury Road.

An Ohio 605 man reported that his wallet was stolen from his unlocked car while the car was parked at Creekside Village Apartments between 8 and 8:30 p.m. on June 15. The man said the wallet contained $200.

Sunbury Police responded to an attempted suicide on June 14 at 12:25 a.m. on the village square.

GENOA TOWNSHIP

ages to her car when her rear window was broken sometime between 8 p.m. on June 6 and 9 a.m. on June 7. The car was parked in her driveway.

While at the scene, Genoa police also found other instances of vandalism. Another mailbox on the road was damaged in the same way. In addition, the roadway in front of 10043 Adams Road was spray painted and there was a traffic sign painted in front of the residence.

A Red Bank Road man, suffered $100 in damages when an alleged perpetrator broke his dresser while they were in an argument. He reported the perpetrator was invited to come over to his residence when they allegedly got into an argument. The perpetrator also allegedly grabbed the second victim by the arm and neck, causing bruises. The second victim had a bruise on his leg as well. The incident occurred sometime between 3 a.m. and 5 a.m. on June 8.

Popcorn preparers

Kevin Jones, of Sunbury, Judy Denton, of Galena, in the foreground, and Janet Cordle, of Delaware, prepared bags of popcorn for fifth-grade graduates of the "It's my Choice to be Drug Free" program on May 21. The program replaced the DARE program in the Big Walnut Schools. Several law enforcement officials were on hand to help serve hot dogs and drinks, including members of the Sunbury Police Department.

Galena orders mosquito relief

Galena mosquito swatters might get some relief in the near future.

Council voted 4-1 to request the Delaware City County Health Department to spray village streets for the pests. Councilman David O'Neil was the lone dissenter, and councilman Ron Lehman was absent.

Last month, council announced that they would wait to hear from the public before making a decision on insecticide spray for the village.

Last night, Mayor John Harpst said he has heard no complaints or requests for spray.

Councilwoman Sara Morris said members of her family are nearly confined inside because the mosquitoes are so bad this year. She requested council act on the issue.

Council's vote seemed to hinge on the cost of the spray. Initially, councilmembers said the cost of spray would be about $300 per application — a cost too high, some councilmembers said.

But Mayor John Harpst reviewed his letter from the Health Department, stating the cost to the village would be $8.30 per mile — or about $25 per application.

That seemed to sway a majority of councilmembers into voting for the insecticide relief.

Harlem Township Alumni Honor Legendary Coach-Teacher Ed Bagley

By STEVE KESLER

Harlem Township Alumni honored teacher and coaching legend Edgar "Ted" Bagley at their 50th Anniversary banquet last Saturday evening.

Mr. Bagley taught from 1941-51 at the former Harlem High School, which once stood where the New-Con concrete plant is now located off State Route 605 near Center Village. The building later served as a junior high and then was torn down.

Mr. Bagley recently celebrated his 90th birthday as a member of the Harlem Boys Breakfast Club regular Wednesday monthly meeting at Roger's Restaurant in Sunbury.

He was presented a cake by Altha McElvee Stelger, Mary Lee Wilson Atwood and Betty Hall Morgan - players who were part of volleyball and softball championship teams at the school.

The breakfast group also includes Jim Stewart, Virgil Kirkpatrick, Walter Fravel, Jim Grove, Ray Stockwell, Bill Garee, Bob Skeens, Eddie Sheets, Ted Wurm, Jim White, Dick Fravel, Curt Montgomery, Bob Atwood, Harold Bachlor, Jim Stockwell, David Skeens, Walden Reed and Arnie Hall.

The volleyball team was unbeaten in four years and the softball squad won two county titles. The school had to get special permission from the state to play volleyball with no scores kept and a time limit.

Former student Bob Skeens recalls Mr. Bagley's challenge of coaching during World War II.

The rationing of rubber left the team with only one basketball and tattered tennis shoes that wouldn't be replaced.

"He kept us going, though," said Skeens.

He also coached basketball and baseball but not football since there were not enough boys. During his tenure, Harlem gathered 28 trophies in junior and senior high boys and girls sports with none below fourth place.

Mr. Bagley says he "taught just about everything but home ec." Along with coaching, he had five different academic subjects, three physical education classes and the senior class play.

The students talked the superintendent into adding chemistry last year. In order to do the experiments, he drove into Columbus and purchased the chemicals himself.

He ended up with 10 students in his class with six getting straight A's.

After leaving Harlem, Mr. Bagley went into the insurance business and then retired in 1959. He keeps himself busy by "tiddling my thumbs and playing the stock market."

Mr. Bagley and his wife, Jessie, have been married 55 years. She has been retired for 28 years as principal at Berlin School.

Mr. Bagley grew up in Orange Township, moved to Africa Road and then resided on Peach Blow Road for 22 years. He and Mrs. Bagley now live in Delaware.

Big Walnut varsity baseball coach Mike Denton has tendered his resignation.

Denton, 1985 BW graduate, took over the program in 1994. He has coached the reserve team and was a varsity assistant.

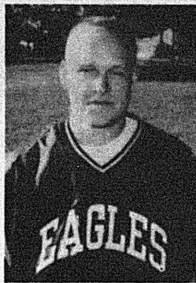

Denton says he decided midway through the season to step down. "I want to devote more time to my family," he tells. "When I got back from road games, my son Max was in bed and I had to put things in perspective."

The Eagles finished 33-40 overall and 18-26 in the Buckeye Athletic Conference during Denton's tenure.

"It's kind of hard leaving and I'll miss some things," added Denton. "It's a bittersweet situation."

Denton, a physical education teacher at Harrison Street and Souder's Elementary, also coached the seventh grade basketball squad for two seasons.

The Ohio State University alumnus is married to his high school sweetheart, Krista.

BW SUMMER BASEBALL

Big Walnut's Summer Baseball Team nipped Whetstone 1-0 in the first game of a doubleheader last Thursday. BW is now 4-1 in the Jack Ryan League.

Andy Hoge, who gained the win and DeMian Phillips, with the save, combined for a one-hitter on the mound. Ron Stein was 1-1 with a double and steal.

In the second game, BW scored in the winner in the fifth as they tripped Whetstone 2-1.

Shawn Terrell picked up the pitching victory in relief of Chris Wampler and Damon Frenstos. The three hurlers allowed just two hits.

Terrell and Andy Busch were each 1-1 with the latter scoring both runs. Stein went 1-2.

BW snapped a 5-all tie with two runs in the fourth for a 7-5 triumph in the first of two games at Ready on Monday, June 10.

Phillips came in for starter Frenstos and retired eight straight batters to get the win. Mike Stoycheff went 2-3 with a double.

The locals held on one-run in the second game before scoring four runs in the fifth for a 7-3 victory.

Allan Boudinot and Stoycheff finished 1-2 with Boudinot adding an RBI and Stoycheff getting a double and two RBI.

Phillips, Hoge and Terrell teamed to fire a three-hitter on the hill.

COUNTRY MUTUAL PONY

Big Walnut Junior Baseball Country Mutual Pony team has won its last four games to stand 5-1 on the season.

"Team chemistry has been a big plus," notes Coach Mike Scott. "Our pitching has been excellent as we have given up only 14 earned runs all year."

The locals have defeated East Knox (17-3, 18-1); New Albany (24-3), the Vikings (9-3) and Centerville Red (21-20). They lost 12-21 to Licking Heights.

Leading hitters so far are B.J. Helton (two homers, four triples, three doubles, .667 average, 15 runs, 15 RBI); Jeff Evans (two doubles, .461 average, 10 runs, eight RBI) and Nate Nance (three doubles, .471 average, nine runs, eight RBI).

Evans and Helton both have 2-0 pitching records with Justin Holmes going 1-0. Relievers are Shawn Moseley and Nance.

Other members of the team are Stuart Barson, David Koron, Ben Campbell, Jared Camden, Jeff Lehner, Seth Delaney, Ben Churchill and Billy Cornwell.

Holmes has scored 16 runs with Koron getting 11 and Barson 10.

CLUB BASEBALL 14-PONY

Big Walnut Club Baseball 14-year-old traveling pony team stands 18-21 after winning four of six contests.

BWCB pounded out 12 hits in rolling past Valley View 13-1 Monday evening at the middle school diamond.

Andy Busch and Bill Johnson went 2-2, the former getting his fifth homer and smacking a double. Clarence Parks was 2-3 with a double.

Justin Koloff was 1-3 with a double. Matt Fadel, Brian Hoge, Rick Davis, Joel Brockman and Ben Hathaway all had one hit each.

Koloff picked up the pitching win by firing a two-hitter and fanning eight batters.

The Clubbers swept Columbus AASC in a Sunday, June 16 road doubleheader, winning the first game 8-3 and gaining a 13-5 triumph in the second encounter.

Fadel and Davis finished 3-4 at the plate with Bill Johnson and Joel Brockman each having two hits. Hathaway was the winning hurler with Mike Penn offering relief.

BWCB started out to a six-run lead and never looked back in the second game.

Johnson was 3-3 with four steals. Penn, winning pitcher Parks and Hoge were each 2-4. Andy Busch closed at 1-1 and Davis belted his fourth homer.

The locals stranded six runners and suffered their second loss of the season in a 5-4 decision at Forest Park on Saturday, June 15.

Top batters were Penn (2-2, three steals); Johnson (1-3, double, two RBI); Koloff (1-3, triple) and Hathaway (1-3). Fadel took the mound loss.

BW Club, leading 4-3, scored six runs in the third inning and went on to dump host Worthington Red 11-4 on Monday, June 10.

Busch was 2-4 with his fourth homer in the key third inning, two RBI and a steal. Davis went 1-4 with three steals.

Starting pitcher Fadel and reliever Johnson limited the Red to three hits.

The Club suffered its first loss of the season, an 11-6 verdict at the middle school against Gahanna on Wednesday, June 5.

"The biggest problem was giving up four runs in the first inning after two out," said Coach Dave Busch. "Plus six errors were hard to overcome."

Parks finished 2-2 with two RBI. Koloff took the loss as starting pitcher with Hathaway offering "four solid innings" in relief.

Rainy weather, flooding hampers corn planting time

Wet-wet-wet. It sure is! This afternoon, June 3, we had a young flood!

It did get dry enough on May 24. I planted one field of corn. It is up and looks nice, but I don't know what today's rain will do to it, water in several places. Depends a lot on how much more we get.

I finished planting corn about 8 a.m. on June 1. I couldn't plant some of the fields I wanted to had to plant wherever it got dry enough. If the weather straightens up I will plant the rest in beans.

It is nothing uncommon to have a cool damp spell this time of year. Every year when the black berries are in blossom we will have a cool damp spell, known as "black berry winter." Just watch, when the black berries are in blossom every year, that will happen.

An old saying is "a cool wet May for wheat and hay and a dry June for a corn crop." This year that sounds a little ridiculous.

A few years back, corn was never planted till around May 20, and beans in June. The ground was plowed and worked down. This got rid of a lot of the weeds and we didn't have the weed problem we have now. Now, chemicals are depended on, they don't always work and they sure are expensive.

34% of the wheat is struggling and quite a bit of it has been torn up. Now they are already talking of importing wheat from China. What ever happened to that big surplus we were supposed to have on hand? Is that some more that was just on paper?

By May 29, Dayton had had 7.3 inches of rain, Cincinnati had 8.5 inches, but that didn't stop the reporters from trying to dig up some dirt on Marge Schott. I wouldn't blame her if she shot one of them. They sure try to make something out of nothing.

Now the big rock on the old Mac Boyd Farm-I've gotten some response to it. I received a call from Beulah Ford Shuster who said that the rock had been researched by some organization in Delaware. It is not actually a rock, but is granite. A company in Wisconsin that makes tomb stones and statues was interested in it, brought their machinery down to dig it out. The farther down they dug, the bigger it got, finally it got so big they couldn't move it so they gave up. So still, no one knows where it came from or how big it is. If any one else has information about it, let me now, this is getting interesting.

Ohio's Governor gets a $1500 fine for taking off from the air port that was closed for the President's landing. It's a shame politics prevents the Governor and President from using the same airport. Rules are rules. We all have to abide by them. Now the Governor says "he will appeal the fine." Who is going to pay for his lawyer? Him or the State?

We have a two party government, neither will give in to the other or compromise. It's my way or none! I sometimes wonder if a new third party would kind of wake them up. They are being paid to work for the good of the country and not their own political party.

May was egg month. Did you eat an extra egg? June is dairy month, better drink an extra glass of milk because if it says "wet, and no one can make hay, milk may get expensive.

Russel Lichtelman and Doug Potter both have had hay down and they got some of it baled between showers.

Have you ever seen the old cemeteries in Hartford Township? They are all cleaned up and moved with new fences. Looks nice trustees.

Over the Memorial Day weekend, the Granville post of the Highway Patrol reported stopping one 36 year old male with 13 drunk driving arrests, a 37 year old male with two arrests, and a 50 year old male with seven drunk driving arrests. I thought we had laws to keep them off the road.

They also issued 908 citations, 355 warnings and 29 seat belt warnings. This is from the Newark Advocate.

I'm glad Wexner didn't invite me to the reception he had for Dole at $50,000 per plate. I don't believe I could have gone if I had been invited. If they charge five or six dollars in a restaurant, I think that is too much.

Well, Israel and Bosnia are at it again. I see Christopher is over their again. I wonder how much it will cost us this time. I wish he would stay home. They have fought over there as long as history goes back and no one will stop them now. I don't know what we have got our nose in over there for anyway.

According to the Ohio Farmer, after June 1, it is a good time to plant corn. I knew that a long time ago. I have been asked when the article on Condit will come out. I don't know. I'll get it some time.

'Mobile studios' aid broadcasts

By Roula Amire

The NBA playoff games you watched on television were available, in part, because of a Sunbury business.

The television production vehicles that air sports events such as the playoffs are being built by Gerling & Associates, 138 Stelzer Court. The company moved from Westerville to Sunbury because they needed a larger building. They opened March 1.

A "mobile studio on wheels," the trucks are primarily used to air sports events ranging anywhere from professional athletic events to high school games, said Chris DeVol, sales engineer. The trucks that broadcast some of the basketball games in Seattle were built by them, he said.

The vehicles are "built to do anything for sports," DeVol said. Remote control rooms, similar to those in a television station, are housed inside the trucks. This is how sports events are able to be broadcast all over the world.

These trucks are used for other purposes aside from sports, such as at city council meetings, DeVol said.

One of about eight manufacturers in the nation, the company has shown tremendous growth since Fred Gerling, president and owner, began his business in Westerville in 1987.

They averaged five trucks a year at that time, but now build between 20-25 trucks, DeVol said. They build 14-foot, 26-32-foot, and 48-foot trucks for their clients.

Fred Gerling stands next to one of his television production vehicles.

National Mobile Television and ESPN are two clients they've worked for in the past.

Being a manufacturer, it is rare they discover to which events their trucks will be used after they are shipped away. They do know, however, that they will build trucks that will cover the track and field Olympic trials in Atlanta, Ga.

Though business has been on the rise, the future is hard to predict because "it all depends on what the demand is," DeVol said.

The firm plans to build more television news vans and satellite trucks in the future, he said.

This Gerling-built truck will be used by ESPN for sports broadcasts.

Beer sales to continue at bait store

By Sue Hagan
Special to The News

Red Banc Harbor bait and tackle store at 7001 Sunbury Road in will be allowed to continue to sell beer for a while, even though the business is located in an otherwise "dry" precinct in Genoa Township.

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control Department in February issued Red Banc, a bait, tackle, and gun shop at 7001 Sunbury Road, a "C-1" liquor permit to sell beer for carryout. At the time, a check of department records showed the business was located in a "wet" precinct of the township. In fact, the only liquor sales permitted in precinct E, where Red Banc is located, are sales by the glass at The Medallion Club golf complex.

The discovery of the error led the department to rescind Red Banc's permit in April. But owners Trish Heslop and Mike Smith contested the order.

On June 5, state liquor control commission granted

Red Banc an extension of its permit. Another hearing on the issue may be scheduled in July or September. That session involved only Red Banc owners and the liquor department. At issue was when the liquor commission will revoke Red Banc's permit to sell beer.

The error dates back to 1988 when a liquor department employee incorrectly applied a "wet" designation to the entire township.

Genoa Township officials have said the mistake could cost the township thousands of dollars. Township officials and attorneys, the township police department, the state district attorney's office, and State Rep. Joan Lawrence, a resident of the township, have spent time unraveling the error. Evans said the cost to the township is yet to be determined, but she estimates that attorneys' fees alone will be at least $1,500.

On June 21, the township trustees agreed to hire attorney William Loveland to represent Genoa Township in the matter.

JVS to continue lease payments until election

By Susan Kelley
Special to The News

Buying time for the Delaware JVS South Campus will cost taxpayers at least $52,000.

On June 13, the JVS board authorized its treasurer to make two $26,000 monthly lease payments to allow the school to maintain the building at 4565 U.S. 235 through mid-August.

Making those payments will mean doing without some other things, JVS Superintendent Bill Saletas said this morning.

Asked what the JVS would forgo, Saletas cited some lab equipment and replacement of a retiring intervention specialist as examples.

The board has negotiated for the $3.05 million South Campus since August 1994. Its first-year contract with Indianapolis-based Countrymark expired May 31.

The school leased the building for $26,000 a month the first year and half of each payment applied toward the purchase price.

No portion of the next two months' payments will apply to purchase, Saletas said.

In addition to monthly payments, the lease-to-purchase agreement required that the school pay $250,000 toward purchase by May 31 in order to enter a second-year lease-to-purchase contract.

Twice since November board members asked voters to fund the purchase of the building, and twice the request was defeated at the polls.

A 1.9-mill, five-year, permanent improvement and operating levy was defeated in November 1995, 12,041 to 6,729. The same issue failed in March, but by a narrower margin, 10,058 to 8,536.

Last month the board voted to put the issue before voters a third time on Aug. 6.

If the August levy passes, the board would rescind a 1-mill operating levy scheduled to expire in 1997. If voters reject the levy in August, Saletas said, a 1-mill renewal levy should go before voters in November.

In April, the board asked businesses and industries to help buy the Countrymark building. That appeal netted only $6,100 which was returned to the donors.

Saletas said he will continue to negotiate with Countrymark and with a Franklin County-based investment group which he and board members declined to identify.

School officials have said the Countrymark property can be purchased for $47 a square foot, compared to $95 a square foot to add on to the North Campus, 1610 Ohio 521, or build a new facility.

School officials have said the JVS needs more space to accommodate increased enrollment and new programs.

JVS enrollment has increased from 299 in 1990 to 450 this school year, and adult educational services have grown from serving 1,500 in 1990 to more than 2,500 in 1995.

The building also houses the Delaware-Union Educational Service Center. That agency moved from its Delaware location last year.

BUYING A HOUSE?

WHAT ARE THE BUYER'S CLOSING COSTS?

A buyer pays all the fees charged by the mortgage company. These fees must be disclosed in the good faith estimate provided by the mortgage company. If the buyer's loan requires an escrow, the buyer will have prepaid expenses for taxes and insurance. The buyer will also prepay interest and premium for hazard and mortgage insurance.

A buyer also pays for mortgage title insurance, survey, recording fee, and closing fee to the title company.

DID YOU KNOW? That regardless of where you close your purchase that all these costs will be just about the same? That you can close your purchase here in Sunbury? Questions? Give me a call.

Genoa to renovate maintenance building, construct new salt shed

By Roula Amire

Genoa Township will have a new and improved maintenance building in the near future.

At their June 12 meeting, trustees approved an agreement with Benate Associates, Inc., of Columbus to handle the design, permit, and bidding phases of the project. The township plans to build a new salt shed, and expand and renovate the maintenance building, 7049 Big Walnut Road.

Estimated cost of additions is $4,830 and $45,986 in renovations, said Clerk Jean Evans. Cost of the salt shed is estimated to be $12,769. The 42 x 70 square-foot facility will be expanded to 80 x 100 square feet, said trustee Patrick Blayney.

Trustee David Boggs was absent from the meeting.

In other business, trustees:

- Scheduled a special meeting July 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the fire station, 7049 Big Walnut Road, to open sealed bids for road repairs on seven township roads. Estimated cost for the repairs is $145,000. There also will be a hearing to rezone six acres from rural to suburban residential at 6135 Freeman Road.

- Amended the new policy that requires Genoa Police officers to reimburse the township for training costs. The amendment requires reimbursement if an officer leaves within three years from the date training began, rather than the date the officer was hired.

- Appropriated $9,000 for the purchase of a medic vehicle from Liberty Township. The vehicle already has most of the necessary equipment. Genoa Fire Chief Don Bauman plans to use it as a squad vehicle, but may upgrade it in the future.

Unlike a medic unit, a squad vehicle does not provide advanced life care but can transport people.

- Announced doctors Loren Leidheiser and Timothy Benadum as new volunteer medical directors for the township. "They will assist us on getting a squad on the road," said Fire Chief Don Bauman.

- Heard Zoning Inspector Mark Mazzon announce the township has purchased software that will allow a link to the Delaware County auditor's tax database.

- Heard Road Supervisor Mike Disbennett announced 67.7 miles have been mosquito sprayed. The mosquito spraying has been delayed because of the weather, he said.

- Hired William Loveland of Loveland & Brosius, Columbus, to pursue litigation with Red Banc Harbor.
